BOARD OF SAFETY MEETING.

Petition for an Engine House at College Avenue and Eighteenth.

The Board of Public Safety held a short session last night to consider routine business. The attention of the members was called to a petition signed by Henry L. smith and seventeen other property-owners, asking for an engine house at College avenue and Eighteenth street. The petitioners say there is $200,000 worth of unprotected property in the neighborhood. The board will consider the petition.

An agent representing the West Virginia cannel coal mines engaged the attention of the board for half an hour. He says the fuel is being used by fire departments of many of the larger cities with success. The coal sells for $7.75 a ton. The agent would not agree to sell less than a car-load at a time, and the board will probably not buy.

The members of the board deny that they bought the new Ahrens fire engine regardiess of other bids. They say they considered all of the estimates before closing

About $18,000.

French & Thompson, clothing dealers at No. 18 North Meridian street, have assigned for the benefit of their creditors. The Union Trust Company has been appointed assignee. The assets of the insolvent firm are about $18,000, with liabilities about the same. Preferences were given to two Minnesota creditors. French & Thompson opened their store here last spring and were apparently enjoying a prosperous run of business. It is the understanding that the Union Trust Company will settle up the business and that no attempt will be made by the firm to start up again. Tuesday French & Thompson filed two chattel mortgages with the county recorder. One was for $1,000 to the Capital National Bank and the other was to Elliott & Co. for a Bloodhound Test on Wednesday.

The management of the poultry and pet stock show, which will begin on Monday at Tomlinson Hall, has decided that the bloodhound contest will take place on Wednesday, unless there is some opposition from some of the owners. There is a great-deal of rivalry among the exhibitors and the only trouble is in getting unanimous consent as to the day. At least twenty dogs will participate and the start will be made from Tomlinson Hall, the trail running through the parks, covering a distance of ten miles or more.

He expressed surprise that the business men of this city and the two organizations above named did not take more interest in the building of new roads into this city. Business men here who have loked into the matter feel that something of this kind should be done if Indianapolis is to keep pace with other railroad centers. There could hardly be a better investment than to build a road from Indianapolis to Rockport, in the southern part of the State. A line is already located and partly built from Rockport to Mitchell, and this should be pushed on to the capital. It is asserted that because of this fact General Fitzgerald will be allowed to name the successor to President Mayer, and it is thought probable that the man to be selected is Vice President King. It is also said that the opportunity to advance money was offered to J. P. Morgan & Co., who looked over the situation and agreed to make the necessary advance, provided that they were permitted to name the new president. This proposition, it is said, was rejected, and General Fitzgerald then undertook to raise the money.

Flues Cause Blazes.

Defective flues and overheated stoves kept the fire department busy last night. The first run was made at 7:30 to No. 167 West Maryland street, a two-story frame cottage occupied by Laura Bess. The loss was $50. A defective flue caused the blaze. An hour later a one-story frame house occupied by George Sweet at No. 115 Columbia alley caught fire and was damaged to the extent of $100. About 10 o'clock the residence of Michael Ford, at No. 121 Minerva street, took fire from an overheated stove. The loss to the house and furniture was estimated at $300. Shortly before midnight fire broke cut in the one-story frame house occupied by Henry Wilkner, at No. 299 East Merrill street. The loss was slight.

The idea came from Hamburg, that of a great building in the business center of the city, in which all the trade assoclations and organized exchanges should have their meeting places, with a hall in which would gather daily the importers, manufacturers, bankers, brokers of all sorts and the representatives of every line of trade, so that all things made or for sale in the city should be bought, in-voiced, insured, shipped and settled for within four walls. The Usual Greetings and Handshaking-Costumes Worn by the "First Lady" and Her Chief Assistants.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1 .- New Year's day was celebrated here in the good old-fashioned way. Washington, of late years, is almost the only city that has retained the old custom. Calls were exchanged by everybody in official and private life. All of the officials received, the President first of all, the Vice President, the members of the Cabinet, heads of bureaus and so down to the humblest officials, and after that the great social public. It was an ideal day, a clear sky and a bracing breeze from the northwest making walking pleasant, but rather hard on the occupants of gay equipages, and the vast throngs on foot, who were obliged to wait in the long line outside of the White House to pay their respects to the President and exchange greet-

The most attractive feature of the great reception was the scene in the vast East room. The daylight was excluded by heavy curtains and the room was flooded with the soft light from the great hemisphere of opal glass in the ceiling, which lit up, in most attractive style, the toilets of the ladies and the splendid uniforms of the diplomatic corps, and of the army and navy officers. As the general public began to enter the house, however, this scene dissolved, and soon the room was filled with a vast throng, curiously viewing the decorations and discussing the appearance of the presidential party and other features of the New Year's day reception. THE FASTEST FILLY

ROSEMEAD STAKES WON EASILY BY IMP. SANTA BELLA.

So Many Bettors at the San Francisco Races the Bookmakers Were Overworked-New Orleans Results,

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1.-The largest crowd that ever gathered within the gates of the Bay District track was present today to witness the Rosemead stakes. So great was the crush that it was impossible for the bookmakers to handle all the bets, and hundreds were unable to place their money on their respective choices. W. O'B. MacDonough's filly Santa Bella demonstrated that she is the fastest filly in the West, giving away weight, getting off none to well and then winning so impressively as to set all doubts at rest regarding her superiority over Green B. New Year's Handleap. NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 1.- This was the thirty-fourth day of the Crescent City Jockey Club winter meeting. The New Year handlcap at a mile, for three-yearolds and upward, was the feature of the day's card. A long delay at the post heat the weight-carriers, and Lillian E., a lightweight, coming through at the end, won very cleverly. Captain Kidd was the only winning favorite. Weather clear and cool, and track slow and attendance large. Sum-

I have before me a letter from a Parisian friend, a gentleman of some literary note in his own country, who informs me that he is learning English by the aid of a small text book and a dictionary, without any other instructor; and he adds: "In small time I can learn so much English as I think I will come to the America and go on the scaffold to lecture."

SECESSION IMPOSSIBLE. Ex-President Harrison Says the Doctrine Has No Constitutional Basis. "Our government is not a confederation of States, but as strictly a government of the people as is any State government," writes ex-President Harrison, discussing "This Country of Ours" in the January number of the Philadelphia Ladies' Home Journal. "It is true," he continues, "that the vote upon amondments is by States the vote upon amendments is by States, in State conventions or in State Legislatures; and that in various other ways the States are recognized and used in the administration of the national government It could hardly have been otherwise. But the construction of Mr. Calhoun and of the secessionists that our Constitution is a mere compact between independent States; that any State may withdraw from the union for any breach of the conditions of the compact, and that each State is to judge for itself whether the compact has been broken, has no support either in the history of the adoption of the Constitu-ion or in the text of the instrument it-"The Constitution and laws of the United States take hold of and deal with each individual, not as a citizen of this or that State, but as a citizen of the United States. Each of us owes allegiance to the United States-to obey and support its Constitution and laws; and no act or ordinance of any State can absolve us or make it lawful for us to disobey the laws or resist the authority of the United States. We owe another allegiance, each to his own State. to support and obey its Constitution and laws, provided these do not conflict with the Constitution and laws of the United States. The question whether an act of Congress is unconstitutional, or whether an act of any officer of the United States, done officially, is unauthorized, must, of course, be decided by the courts of the United States, in the last resort by the Supreme Court. A power in a State court finally to declare a law of the United States invalid would be destructive of national authority, and, indeed, of the national existence. There can be, in a proper Constitu-tional sense, no secession and no war between a State and the United States; for no ordinance repudiating the national authority or organizing resistance to it can have any legal sanction, even when passed by a State Legislature." Solleitude. Chicago Illustrated Weekly. An Indiana man aged eighty years hanged himself because he could not become sanctified. If this custom is universally adopted there will not be rope enough in the

Cured Diabetes.

March 14th, 1895. The Dr. J. H. McLean Medicine Co.,

ST. LOUIS, MO. GENTLEMEN: I desire to express my heartfelt thanks to you for my marvelous restoration to health. I was sick for many years with a bad case of diabetes which made me very thin and weak. I also suffered much loss of sleep, having to get up so many times at night to pass urine, and also great annoyance from thirst that water would not satisfy. A few months ago began to follow your instructions in regard to diet

MAY BUILD THE ROAD

From a gentleman who spent the holidays at Logansport is learned that interest | Overheated Stoves and Defective confident that were Indianapolis to take a little interest in the enterprise and secure the road a right of way to a connection with the Union tracks the construction of the line would be resumed in the early spring. There are a number of subsidies which are still good, grading having been done to such an extent as to hold the subsidies legally for a certain period, but no trouble is looked for on that score. So anxious are business men along the proposed paid, and others doubtless made. The Journal has information to the effect that man above alluded to says he is confident that were the Board of Trade or Commercial Club to take some interest in securing this road it could be readily accomplished.
